USING THE NORTHEAST WISCONSIN TECHNICAL COLLEGE (NWTC) TEST GENERATOR TO CONVERT AN .RTF TEST FILE TO BLACKBOARD

This explains how to convert an .rtf test file to a Blackboard test file.

- 1. Point your browser to https://www.cod.edu/it/blackboard/testgenerators.htm and select the Northeast Wisconsin Technical College test generator link, or go directly to https://resources.online.nwtc.edu/blackboard/test-generator/.
- 2. Open your .rtf test file in Word.
- 3. Edit the .rtf test file in Word to match the NWTC format. Pay attention to asterisks (*), comment lines (#) and blank lines. See below for examples and by clicking Help, you can also get question samples from the test generator website.
- 4. Copy and paste your .rtf file text into the test generator text box.

- 7. Click Download in order to save the .txt file to your local machine. Note where your file is saved.
- 8. Go to Blackboard to create your test using the normal procedure.
- 9. When creating questions, select Upload Questions to browse your computer for the new .txt file.
- 10. Confirm that your new .txt test file is selected and then click the Submit button.
- 11. Edit your test in normal fashion.

The test generator will recognize lines beginning with numbers as individual questions and any row following as an associated answer. Rows in your document which begin with anything other than an alphanumeric character will be ignored. It is recommended that you utilize the numbering function in your word processor to help produce an organized document.
