

Professional Development Requirement

All students are required to fulfill a Professional Development Requirement in order to graduate.

Students will satisfy the requirement by:

- a. Attending at least one individual meeting with a counselor from the Center for Career and Professional Development (“CCPD”) during the first semester of their first year at the Law School,
- b. Attending at least one in-office meeting with a CCPD counselor during their final year in law school, and
- c. Earning six (6) professional development (“PD”) credits, in addition to their academic credits, before graduating from law school.