

Abigail Rudow, AICP

VHB Engineering, Surveying, Landscape Architecture, and Geology P.C.

Abi Rudow, AICP, is a Senior Environmental Planner with VHB, a national planning, engineering, and design firm with clients in various markets including real estate, transportation, local government, institutional, and energy. Abi has been a part VHB's environmental and community planning practices for 9 years, supporting commercial and residential development on Long Island, New York City, and the Hudson Valley. Abi's past projects include the Greater East Midtown Rezoning, 175 Park, and the New York State Downtown Revitalization Initiatives in Baldwin and Kingston, NY. She worked previously for Kramer Levin and the White Plains Planning Department. Abi holds a Masters of Urban Planning from the NYU Wagner School of Public Service and a BS in Policy Analysis and Management from Cornell University. Abi also proudly serves as the Chair for the Urban Land Institute's New York Chapter TAPs Steering Committee.